The rest will go to the state and to cover costs. Forty-three percent of those cases were borrower class actions, most involving inadequate disclosure regarding option adjustable-rate mortgages ARMs and discriminatory lending practices.

Kramer pointed to greed as the reason the subprime problem has grown to its current size. Last year, subprime-mortgage-related cases were filed in federal litigation as a predatory practice the number in the second half of the year nearly twice the number in the first half-and that figure is likely to continue growing, according to a report by Navigant Consulting. The consequence of the embellishment of their income is that the homeowner now has a loan that they cannot afford to pay. Some of the cases involve the classic predatory lending schemes, where certain borrowers were given mortgages with high interest rates, while other suits are combating loans that are ultimately unaffordable. In addition, 25 states have anti-predatory lending laws, and 35 states limit lending normally occurs with loans backed by collateral, such as a car or house, so that if the borrower defaults on payment, the unscrupulous lender can profit by selling the repossessed or foreclosed property. Subprime loans are made to borrowers with a poor credit history and a high chance of defaulting on repayment.
