That is what happened to me. Marcus challenges Matthew's plans not to tell Diana that the Congregation made up of three vampires, three witches and three daemons prohibits close relationships between the different kinds of creatures, Matthew's apparent plan to hunt down Gillian for sending the threatening mail, and Matthew's idea to take Diana to Matthew's vampire mother at their family estate in France, called Sept-Tours. In the end, that blood is all that matters. TurnedduringCrusadeshewasatruemonster,killingforthesakeofkilling, But when she meets Vair, the dark and sexy owner of a Manhattan x-club, she may get more than she bargained for... This Fall I'm happy to say at least one of the many new releases is worth reading.

In Forsaken, Ellis depicts a vampire as completely evil, using a Phantom of the Opera-like character. Aunt Sarah is able to magically heal most of Diana's injuries.
